Digital Ethnography of YouTube project

An Anthropological Introduction to YouTube
by Michael Wesch
and the Digital Ethnography Working Group

Presentation at the Library of Congress, June 23rd 2008. This was tons of fun to present. I decided to forgo the PowerPoint and instead worked with students to prepare over 40 minutes of video for the 55 minute presentation.

The Semantic Social Network

Two types of technologies are about to merge:

Content syndication

Social networking

They will merge to create a new type of internet, a network within a network, and in so doing reshape the internet as we know it.

Stephen Downes (2004)

CCKo8: Coming to Know

23 October, 2008 by Keith Lyons | Edit

George Siemens has produced this summary of the first six weeks of CCK08 online course (I was alerted to this by OLDaily). I have been sharing the course with many of my colleagues and I am posting George's video here as an important marker for me in the course.

Wolfram Alpha is Coming -- and It Could be as Important as Google

Note added by Nova Spivack at 09:21 PM CST

(FIRST DRAFT -- Connect with me about this on Twitter here) Stephen Wolfram is building something new -- and it is really impressive and significant. In fact it may be as important for the Web (and the world) as Google, but for a different purpose. Stephen was kind enough to spend two hours ...

Wolfram|Alpha Is Coming!

March 5, 2009
Stephen Wolfram

Some might say that Mathematica and A New Kind of Science are ambitious projects.

But in recent years I've been hard at work on a still more ambitious project—called Wolfram|Alpha.

And I'm excited to say that in just two months it's going to be going live:

UNEXPECTED RD

The Fourth Age institute flourishes because it is empowered to explore and own the edge of knowledge production to create new core activities that shape strategic direction.

The skills of shaping the future are quite different to the skills of adapting to it.
